TO RENDER SERVICE and to trade fairly. To profit not alone in dollars and cents, but in the good will and high esteem of those with whom we deal. To correct our errors. To show courtesy to all. To look upon work as something more than routine activity. To put earnestness, sincerity, initiative in everything we undertake, and to rear from the daily task a structure which shall be known for all that's best in business.

This has been the standard we set for ourselves during 1918. We shall try to come nearer to its realization during 1919.

Wishing you a prosperous and Happy New Year, I am,
Yours very truly,

L. H. CALDWELL
